WORKING TOWARDS A FAIR AND JUST HOUSING SYSTEM

SHELTER
NSW

Shelter NSW is a non-government, non-profit, social change agency committed to working for a fair and just housing system.

What we do

We work to ensure that low-income and disadvantaged people in New South Wales have access to housing that is affordable, safe, secure and appropriate to their needs. Our work falls into two broad areas: advocacy and education.

Shelter NSW advocates for these housing interests by utilising a number of strategies:

- research
- submissions to government and non-government inquiries
- consultations
- policy development
- representation on advisory committees
- lobbying
- coordinating community-based responses
- liaising with the media, politicians, government agencies and other community organisations.

We provide community education on contemporary housing issues to build the capacity of non-profit organisations to provide housing and housing-related services, by:

- publishing informational resources on key housing issues – including our quarterly newsletter, Around the House, and a series of occasional papers, Shelter Briefs

- conducting seminars
- presenting training courses.

We also are engaged in:

- networking and partnering with other non-profit non-government organisations and consumer organisations
- working with National Shelter – a network of state and territory Shelter organisations – in the national sphere.

Our interests

We have a strong focus on the affordability of housing for low to moderate income households, whether private rental (including residential parks and boarding houses), social housing or home ownership. However we are not just concerned about ‘bricks and mortar’ – we support the strengthening of communities based on people’s needs coming first.

We don’t see solutions to housing problems as lying solely with government agencies, but also with the private and not-for-profit sectors. And we see opportunities for better housing outcomes coming from changes to the taxation system and the environmental planning system.

Membership benefits

Become a member of Shelter NSW, to support our work towards a fairer housing system. Our ability to achieve results is dependent on the support of a wide cross-section of individuals and community groups who are active in housing issues.

Benefits of membership include:

- our quarterly newsletter, Around the House, and our Member eBulletin
- discounted prices on Shelter events
- the right to participate in governance of the association.
